INTERNATIONAL AS WELL AS CANADIAN AND BRITISH AUTHORITIES ENDORSE ABOLITION OF CORPORAL PUNISHMENT

By Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman

Since the Toronto Board of Education has decided that the status quo be maintained with reference to corporal punishment in the public schools, a number of educational authorities, British, Canadian and American, have in Toronto made public expression on the subject, which indicates that the decision of our board was certainly not in line with the trend of educational progress. Professor Blatz of the Psychology Department of the University of Toronto and director of the St. George School for Child Study and one of Canada's leading authorities on child training, in a public address a few weeks ago stated that the system of corporal punishment prevailing in the public schools of Toronto would be "ridiculous if it were not so tragic." But last week Judge Warner, of London, Ontario, judge of the Juvenile Court there, speaking before the meeting of the Association of Children's Aid Societies, declared, according to newspaper reports, strapping to be useless for delinquents, and pointed out that the weakness of the use of force for corrective purposes lies in the fact that it is an "appeal to the emotion of fear." Both of these men are authorities, who do not speak from theory but from vast experience with and observation of children. They are Canadian, and hence the force of their arguments cannot be dodged by flag-waving methods.

A noted English educator, Mrs. Beatrice Ensor, chairman of the New Education Fellowship of London, England, at a meeting with the Toronto Home and School Council, condemned corporal punishment (Toronto "Globe," April 19th). Similar sentiments were voiced by the presidents of the American Education Association in a public address to a portion of the convention of the Ontario Educational Association. She stated that corporal punishment was being eliminated from all the better schools. In addition to that, a cable despatch from Germany indicates that the Prussian Minister of Education, Becker, has issued an order abolishing corporal punishment for all girls in the schools as well as for boys in the first two years. He accompanied his order with a statement that modern pedagogy demonstrates clearly that the desired end cannot be obtained by inflicting corporal punishment and in nearly all cases much harm is done through causing unbearable humiliation.

It is an interesting fact that so shortly after our campaign to abolish corporal punishment in the public schools had been discredited by the guardians of our school system, that there should come this approval of our attitude not only from authorities in Ontario, but also from educationists in Great Britain and the United States. And even Germany, the land of rigorous discipline, is recanting, and through its minister of education voices its opposition to the old strapping methods, and embarks on more enlightened policies.

The march of events is apparent. Corporal punishment as a medium of disciplining children is doomed. It is gradually being eliminated. Whenever the new education gets a hearing the antiquated

ZIONISM AS A SOURCE OF VALUES IN JEWISH LIFE

I.

The life of most people is dull, monotonous, prosaic. The grind of making money; the filling up of the maw; the horizontal posturing of the body for rest; a few excitations that shake up the jaded nerves; the routine of domestic anxieties and pleasures; illusory social achievements. Day follows day and the process is an endless series of repetitions. What impregnates this treadmill activity with significance? Is there ever a flash that lights up the horizons and reveals broader stretches of beauty and meaning that will beckon and exalt? A stray note of music that will wander into one's orderly life and stir up yearnings for harmonies and ecstasies? An inspired word that will bore through the crust that encases people s beings and set in motion longings for gods and distant places? An idea that will overcome habit and bent and fire one with new passions for big things and heroic actions?

We live; spend our days; and grow old. The majority are content, and pray not to be disturbed. They do not reflect on values. If they are offered a new idea, a new stimulation, they will blink their eyes and attempt to appraise it in the terms of the ordinary commodities which they purchase for their gratification. They are not aware that they exist in a cramped setting. They have no desire to broaden and expand.

II.

Our Jewish life in America is colourless and uninspired. It has no background, no history, no memories. Generations before have lived and fought. They had strange situations to meet. They evolved instincts, attitudes, apperceptions. They accumulated wisdom, extracted formulas out of their experiences. They had a complete, comprehensive culture. Their successors, the present performers on the scene, have started out with a tabula rasa, discarding all guidance from the past. They are placed in a bewildering situation. There is a seething life around them; a culture, not profound, to be sure, but possessing some roots and a degree of individuality. Our Jewish brethren are striving to integrate themselves in their environment. But they cannot quite manage that. There is their Jewishness. They cannot get rid of it. It prevents them from blending with their surroundings. They do not understand what it is; they do not know what are its elements. They stumble along. They have their load of Jewish characteristics; they clutch at whatever they can pluck out of the context of the surrounding culture. They have for their pains an ill-assorted medley of cultural ingredients. Their Jewishness is fragmentary, incoherent. Their Americanism is haphazard and denatured.

III.

To the observer the conspectus of American Jewish life presents a tragic spectacle; these spiritual cripples that we see around us are the offsprings of a race of spiritual giants. Their forefathers in the old countries were scholars steeped in universal truths, who had a

Two Moslem Arabs were injured in a clash between a Moslem demonstration and the British gendarmerie, at Gaza on Saturday afternoon, when an attempt was made to voice the objections of Palestine Moslems to the Protestant Missionary Council conference which concluded its sessions here last week. A number of leading Moslems in Gaza requested the British district officer to grant them permission to hold the demonstration. The district officer declined to issue a permit, but expressed his willingness to receive a deputation. When the Moslem population was assembled at the mosque for noon prayer a rumour spread rapidly that the deputation which called on the officer had been placed under arrest. The crowd then rushed to the police barracks, where there was only twenty gendarmes. The officer in charge ordered the men to fire on the mob. In the meantime, reinforcements were called out from Jaffa to restore order.

The Pioneer Publications of American Jewry

A First Chapter in American-Jewish Literary History

BY RABBI LEON SPITZ

The very earliest publication in American-Jewish history was a diary and it was never sent to press. Even the manuscript has not been fully preserved. It was written in Hebrew by the original head of the Sheftall family, which played such a prominent role both in Georgia and in South Carolina, and it described the details of his voyage to Savannah in 1733. The diary was continued in English by members of the family for several generations. It sheds some flickering light on Jewish pioneer life in Colonial America.

The title of having written and published the first Jewish work in America, must, however, be assigned to a Jewish convert to Christianity, Judah Monis. Even if one should not take into consideration his missionary pamphlet, "An Address on the Truth," being a discourse which the author delivered at his baptism in 1722, he must still be credited with the authorship in 1735 of the first Hebrew grammar ever printed in America and intended for the use of the theological students at Harvard College, where he held down a chair in Hebrew — the reward of his conversion. Its title in Sephardic Hebrew read: "Dickdook Leshon Gnebreet—A Grammar of the Hebrew Tongue," being an essay to bring the Hebrew grammar into English to facilitate the instruction of the primitive tongue, in order to further acquaint them with the sacred oracles of the Old Testament according to the original.

But the first religious publication devoted to Jewish interests handed down to us was a form of prayer for a Thanksgiving Day service appointed in 1760 to celebrate the English conquest of Canada. This was pronounced and published by Rabbi Joseph Jeshurun

Pinto who at the time officiated as the Hazzan of Shearith Israel Congregation, America's first synagogue, at New York. In the same year he had it translated into English and printed as a bit of testimony, one may presume, of Jewish participation in the display of civic activity and patriotic sentiment.

A much more ambitious and scholarly publication was carried out to a successful issue by a relative of the Rabbi—a Mr. Isaac Pinto, in 1766. This was the rendition and the publication of an English version of the Sephardic service for Rosh Hashonah and Yom Kippur, the very earliest English translation of the Hebrew prayer book on record. It is properly accounted as the "opus magnum" of Colonial Jewry in the literary field. It was American Jewry's first important contribution to the world's Jewish learning, to Judaica.

Soon after in 1774, Hacham Chayim Isaak Karigal, of Hebron, in Palestine, had arranged for the printing of an English translation of the Shabuoth sermon which he had preached in that year from the pulpit of the Jesuat Israel Congregation at Newport, R.I. A Mr. Lopez, a member of the congregation, translated it into the vernacular and had it printed by John Holt at Newport. A copy of the tract is still extant at the Lesser Library in Philadelphia.

Now followed—after a lapse of fully fifteen years— a Thanksgiving Day sermon which the patriot Rabbi—a trustee of Columbia College—Gershom Mendez Seixas, preached on November 26, 1789. A notice of this publication described it as "the first of the kind ever preached in English in this state."

Jewish community life became more organized and sought to achieve a larger measure of independence from the control of the mother synagogue at London. It was quite a natural thing therefore for an American Jew to entertain the idea of issuing a Jewish calendar. This first American-Jewish calendar was now printed by Mr. Moses Lopez, of Newport, in 1806, an annotated copy of which was recently presented by the Misses Phillips to the American-Jewish Historical Society. Its title announces that it is a "Lunar calendar of the festivals and other days in the year observed by the Israelites." It was arranged for a period of fifty-four years. It had the acknowledgment "and approbation of the Rev. Mr. Seixas, the respectable Hazzan of the K. K. Shearith Israel in New York." It was printed in the office of the Newport Mercury in 1806.

This Rev. Seixas had been quite an influential and popular personage in his day. At his death in 1816 a funeral tribute was preached and subsequently printed in his memory by one of his successors, the Rev. E. N. Carvalho, at the Mikveh Israel Synagogue in Philadelphia. This was the first funeral sermon on record in the annals of American-Jewish publicity.

Jewish education soon claimed its due attention. The Hebrew language was not widespread and the need for a catechism of Judaism in English was felt. Solomon Jacob Cohen, of Richmond, undertook to supply the want, and issued in 1817 his work which he entitled "Elements of the Jewish Faith Translated from the Hebrew." This is the pioneer Sunday School text in the land and its author was apparently the pioneer pedagogic writer.

In 1818 Major Mordecai M. Noah—who had already returned from his consular post at Tunis but had not yet launched on the fantastic scheme of erecting Ararat a Jewish city of refuge near Niagara Falls—published a discourse which he had delivered at the consecration of the new synagogue of the K. K. Shearith Israel on Friday, the 10th of Nissan, 5578 (April 7, 1818). As Major Noah had been acclaimed by many as the first literary figure in America, his discourse must have represented a specimen of literary excellence. At any rate the author sent a copy to President Thomas Jefferson who courteously acknowledged the gift of the author.

Two years later a Southern gentleman published a discourse delivered at the consecration of the Hebrew Congregation Mikva Israel in the city of Savannah, Georgia, on Friday, the 10th of Ab, 5580 (1820). The speaker and author was a Jewish physician, Jacob de La Motta.

We now come to the first book or publication—neither text nor sermon. It was accurately speaking a pamphlet, the first effort at Jewish apologetics in the United States. It was an anonymous work that went under the title of "Israel Vindicated," being a refutation of the calumnies propagated respecting the Jewish nation, in which the objects and views of the American Society for Ameliorating the Condition of the Jews are investigated, by an Israelite, N.Y., 1820. In plain language it was an anti-missionary pamphlet.

Apparently other Jews found it necessary to ward off the missionary propaganda among the poorer Jews, and a public-spirited Jew, S. H. Jackson, made a courageous attempt to publish a monthly, the first pioneer Jewish periodical in America, with the avowed purpose of combating anti-Jewish missionary activities. Its title was rather appropriately named "The Jew." It was published as an English monthly at New York City from March 1, 1823, to March 1, 1825, exactly a period of two years. Its editor was a militant defender of his faith, of whom nothing more is known. Its avowed object was boldly stated on its sub-title, as being "a defense of Judaism against all adversaries, and particularly against the insidious attacks on Israel's faith." A copy of this most interesting publication may still be viewed at the Lesser Library.

Yet "The Jew" was only a little periodical which hardly deserved the name and lasted only two short years. A much more ambitious and permanent magazine, also a monthly and also published in English, was "The Occident." It began publication at Philadelphia in 1843 and appeared continuously for twenty-six years in that city. For a quarter of a century its editor, Rabbi Isaac Lesser (the American translator of the Bible) pursued a conservative the six years preceding the Civil War, the journal appeared as a weekly, and on its last year it was edited by the eminent jurist, Judge Mayer Sulzberger, of Philadelphia. "The Occident" is regarded as the first American-Jewish periodical, and it was the forerunner of a veritable country-wide network of journals, daily, weekly, monthly, quarterly, and yearly, in English, Yiddish, Hebrew, Ladino and every other language conceivably written, spoken or read by American Jewry.

A note of hope for improvement in the Jewish situation in Roumania and Hungary was sounded and a grievance against a League Committee for its action in the matter of the Hungarian Numerus Clausus was formulated in the report of the Joint Foreign Committee of the Board of Jewish Deputies and Anglo-Jewish Association. Lucien Wolf secretary of the committee, in his report submitted yesterday to the monthly session of the Board of Jewish Deputies declared that "smooth waters have been reached, although there are still some rough spots regarding the situation in Roumania and Hungary." No complaints have been received recently from Roumania. In Hungary the numerus clausus is still connected with certain technical difficulties, Mr. Wolf stated. The developments in Roumania are proceeding in harmony with the Government's pledges. Symptoms of anti-Semitic unrest are not wanting, but the Government has acted promptly and maintained peace, especially at the universities. All anti-Semitic student meetings were prohibited by the Government. Progress has also been made in reconstructive legislation dealing with the deeply-rooted Jewish grievances.

Because of the infringement of the rights of Palestine Jews in the Transjordanian frontier force, the executive committee of the Tel Aviv municipality declined to accept an invitation of the frontier force to participate in the organization of the force's tournament which is soon to be held in Tel Aviv. The proceeds of the tournament will go for the sufferers of the recent earthquake. In declining the invitation the committee stated that it takes this action in resentment of the limitation of Jewish representation on the force.

WHAT ABOUT THE SOUL OF FEDERATION?

Jewish Montreal boasts of a splendid Federation of Philanthropies. The machine—the organism—of the local Federation is indeed fine. One need only turn to its recent eleventh annual report to convince himself of this fact. But—and there is always a "but" to be considered—what about the soul of Federation? We mean the educational—the spiritual, the aesthetic—endeavours. Merely to collect a huge sum of money and to dispense same in the most economical manner is not the only function of a Jewish Federation. On the boards of constituent societies appear the names of high-minded, big-hearted business men. They know how to run the machinery of the organization. There is no doubt about it. But when it comes to the educational and spiritual, the professional men must be enlisted into the service of the institutions. For example, on an orphanage board, along with the business experts ought to be men who know something about child psychology and child education. On the board of such an institution ought also to be mothers who understand and know best the heart of the child. And no constituent society ought to be without a representative of the Rabbinate. After all, there is a Jewish point of view to social service. The spiritual leader ought not to be relegated to "the gallery of honorary membership." In reality, honorary membership means non-participation—no say in the matter.

And when we speak about the soul of Federation, we emphasize the Jewish soul without the colourings of Orthodoxy or Reform. Next to suffering we are united in charity. Hence it is ever important that when it comes to elect men on boards there ought not to enter "Jewish sectarianism." A man deserves to be on a board because of his fitness for the particular type of work in a particular institution. It matters little whether the individual belongs to one ecclesiastical organization or to another. Above all else, we ought to cultivate the Jewish soul in Federation. We ought to keep that soul pure · free from pettiness and uncharitableness.

WHO KNOWS JACOB ELKIND?

An appeal is made to us by S. Bunin, of 219 Sixth Avenue, Brooklyn, N.Y., to locate Jacob Elkind, who is supposed to be in Montreal. Elkind hails from Borisow (Minsk), Russia. Will readers of Commentaries help out in this important matter?

A NEW JEWISH ENCYCLOPEDIA

Rabbi Isaac Landman, at one time Rabbi of Temple Emanu-El, is managing editor of the new Jewish Encyclopedia -The Encyclopedia Judaica. The old Jewish Encyclopedia published in 1901 was primarily designed for scientific reading. The new venture will be of a popular nature. We congratulate Rabbi Landman and his co-workers upon the new undertaking. We need an up-to-date authoritative Jewish Encyclopedia. By the way, there ought to be a Jewish Encyclopedia in every Jewish home.

A family conference that lasted one minute

WHAT fun, those family conferences over the home they'd dreamed about. Innumerable investigations, comparison of notes, exciting decisions. The plumbing, for example, seemed to embody such a combination of mechanical detail, home convenience, and interior decoration. Alone, neither could have felt sure.

But Husband came home one evening from a consultation with the architect and plumbing contractor and said that everything seemed to point to Crane. Crane assured quality and dependability, would mean better resale value, and cost no more.

Wife had already visited the Crane Exhibit Rooms and returned hoping she could have such plumbing. The fixtures were so attractive and offered such interesting possibilities for charming bathroom arrangement. And all the little points of convenience had been planned so carefully to save her extra work.

A visit to the nearest Crane Exhibit Rooms, either alone or with your plumbing contractor, will prove interesting and profitable. You will not be asked to buy, since Crane plumbing and heating fixtures, valves, and fittings are sold only through responsible plumbing contractors.

Mail the coupon below and Crane will send you, without obligation, an interesting 23-page booklet, New Ideas for Bathrooms; containing illustrations, floor plans, wall elevations, color schemes, and full description of nine bathrooms.

rod goes and goes forever. Where parents become more intelligent, and teachers better equipped, other ways are found of imparting to children the mores of the race than at the end of a strap.

Our campaign to do away with the strap has been checked, but only temporarily. It remains necessary to rouse a public which is accustomed to the old methods of discipline. Habits are very tenacious. Traditions of centuries duration cannot speedily be uprooted. We live midst a generation which has never heard the value of the strap challenged. This generation must be brought in contact with the newer philosophies and the newer and better educational processes. Then it will speak and our school authorities will hear.

Progress is inevitable. Puny man may retard slightly or accelerate slightly. He cannot impede. The spokesmen of the newer education in Great Britain and Canada, in the United States and in Germany, in Italy and in Belgium, have rejected corporal punishment as a medium for discipline. Eventually it will go in all schools and in all homes. It will go in Toronto too, for the tide of progress cannot long be resisted. Meanwhile, ours is the duty to hold up the truth for our neighbours as we see it. We may be outshouted. We may be outvoted, but if truth is on our side, victory will come. And we believe that in the matter of corporal punishment, truth lies on the side of those who favour its abolition.

Herman Diamand, well known Polish Jewish economist and one of the outstanding leaders of the Polish Socialist Party in Galicia, was chosen president of the party's supreme council.

God, and a philosophy of life, and an abiding faith. See our Jewish Johns and Lloyds and Mortimers. Their lives are hollow. What have they of all the riches in which their fathers gloried? A bit of evaporated religion that has lost all flavour or savour? An insuppressible mannerism of thought or speech? These are of trivial value in the making up of a spiritual content. They have picked up a sizable portion of American culture. But is not this composed mainly of the stuff that lay on the surface, easy to pick up? Did they sweat to dig deep in the soil of American life where the roots draw their nurture? They have acquired American manners. They have seized upon American business ideas and made them their own. But they are not full Americans. There is the Jewish question mark ever stuck in the centre of their being. It is the question that Jewish history asks of them; and it upsets their equilibrium.

To our inane Jewish existence the Zionist ideal is a Godsend. The Jewish John is an unimaginative fellow. His life is a succession of dull events. Now and again he surely does need a bit of inspiration. His eyes are focussed on the immediacies in front of him. But at times there is a far away look in them. They roam and search for a speck of beauty in the sky. Must he be doomed to eternal pettiness? Cannot his imagination take on wings and soar in distant spaces? Cannot his heart dilate and experience the thrill of a romantic yearning?

Zionism tells him that his being a Jew is not merely a matter of the shape of his nose. It has a deep significance. The world consists of a group of peoples who create cultures. The Jews are a culture-creating entity. The differentiation involved in his being a Jew has the value of a cultural differentiation. His status is thus raised. Instead of My interest in the organization has extended over many years, and first came when I was in Australia. Since then I have seen Salvationists in my own country, and even more in India, where they get hold of people no other organization reaches. The Criminal classes are made to feel more like human beings through The Army.

VISCOUNT WILLINGDON, GOVERNOR-GENERAL

"Self-Denial Week"

When outstanding men, men whose integrity is unquestionable, men whose vision is farseeing, and international in its scope, express such opinions as the above - "There must be good in the Army" - If you could only grasp the stupendous work of this great world-wide organization you would be astounded - all day - every day this Army of Salvation is giving and doing something for some unfortunate. At this period The Army is entering on its campaign of "Self-Denial." Will you deny yourself, too, and help the cause ?

being a mere creature, he is elevated to the dignity of a culture bearer.

Zionism is engaged in the experiment of rebuilding Palestine and re-establishing the Jewish nation on its own territory. It is disentangling old history. It is making new history. It is dealing with the destiny of an old people. It is playing with the fate of a culture; of an old language and an old literature. There is something fascinating and heroic about this venture. The Jewish average man in America is engulfed in his deadening commercial interests. He cannot lift himself above his petty concerns and experience the joy of romantic adventure. Zionism comes to him and suffuses the glow of an ideal in his chilly atmosphere. It kindles a flame in him. It rejuvenates him. It affords him an opportunity to participate in a big historic job. It turns him into a warrior fighting a battle for national destiny. It takes a drab drifting mob and turns them into heroes.

It is pitiable that Jewish life in America has not come more under the influence of Zionist ideology. It needs the beautifying effect of faith in an ideal. And what other movement in Jewdom is as significant and vital as Zionism?

	Authorized	To be outstanding

There is an outstanding land mortgage of $436,500 in favor of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, bearing interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, with semi-annual instalments of principal of $5,750 and maturing on May 1, 1941. Another mortgage of $5,500 maturing on April 27, 1933, and bearing interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum is also outstanding against a portion of the property.

From his letter to us Mr. A. J. Freiman, President and Managing Director, summarizes, in part, as follows:

BUSINESS: The company owns and operates the largest departmental store in the city of Ottawa, handling substantially all lines of merchandise usually associated with such a business. The business was established by myself in 1900 on a very small scale, and, largely through the re-investment of surplus earnings, has grown to its present proportions, being now the largest departmental store in the province of Ontario east of Toronto.

PROPERTY: The company occupies a large modern store property facing on three streets in the city of Ottawa, which together with its suburbs and the adjoining city of Hull, has an estimated population of 175,000. The property has a frontage of approximately 182 feet on Rideau Street, 198 on Mosgrove Street and 196 feet on George Street.

SALES: Sales for each of the last six fiscal years ended January 31st have been as follows:

1924	2,393,421.08	1927	2,752,614.97
1925	2,340,355.20	1928	3,094,680.39

EARNINGS: The net profits for the three years ending January 31st, 1928, after charging all selling, general and administration expenses, and making adequate provision for depreciation and income taxes, and after allowing for saving in interest charges arising from the additional capital being provided by this financing, have been certified by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., chartered accountants, as follows:

Year ending January 31st	Profits before Depreciation and Income Taxes	Depreciation	Income Taxes at Present Rates	Net Profits
1926	$140,493.60	$28,000.00	$8,839.49	$103,654.11
1927	165,380.66	28,000.00	10,830.45	126,550.21
1928	201,785.37	28,000.00	13,742.83	160,042.54

The company has never had an unprofitable year. For the year ended January 31st, 1928, net profits were in excess of 2.66 times dividend requirements on the preferred stock.

ASSETS: Net tangible assets as at January 31st, 1928, available for the preferred stock, as certified by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., were $1,974,401.69, equivalent to $197 per share of preferred stock to be presently outstanding. Current assets are certified at $1,243,577.11, as against current liabilities of $180,556.64, giving a working capital ratio of 6.88 to 1.

REDEMPTION PROVISIONS: The company, on giving sixty days' notice, may redeem the whole or any part of the preferred stock on any dividend date at $105 per share and accrued dividends.

SINKING FUND: An annual sinking fund commencing April 1st, 1929, of 10 per cent. of the net earnings, as defined, for the preceding fiscal year available for the payment of dividends on the common stock, is to be set apart for the redemption of the preferred stock at or under $105 plus brokerage.

PROTECTIVE PROVISION: Provisions of a conservative character are included in the preferred stock provisions to safeguard the interests of the holders of the preferred shares. Additional preferred shares may not be issued unless the net profits available for dividends on the preferred shares during the preceding twelve months have been equal to at least three times dividend requirements on the preferred shares outstanding and to be issued.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: The proceeds of half this preferred stock will be used for opening a chain of order-taking depots throughout the Ottawa valley and other tributary territory, and for expansion of the business generally; the balance represents the re-classification of outstanding stock acquired from the former owners.

MANAGEMENT: The present management, which has built up the business to its present prosperous condition, will remain in active charge. Mr. A. J. Freiman will continue to act as president and managing director, and will retain control of the company. A representative of the bankers underwriting this issue will be elected to the board of directors.

PROSPECTS: The city of Ottawa, in the beautification of which as the capital of Canada the Dominion Government is spending large sums of money, has, together with its environs, shown consistent growth, and the rich Ottawa valley, for the trade of which the company now intends to reach out, provides a fertile field for the extension of the company's operations. The development of the immense water-power resources of the Gatineau and Ottawa rivers by interests associated with the International Paper Company, and others, insures rapid industrial growth in the territory served by the company.

We recommend the preferred stock for investment and offer it subject to allotment, when, as, and if issued, and received by us, and subject to the approval of all legal details by our counsel, Messrs. Fraser & Beatty, and by Messrs. Henderson & Herridge for the company.

PRICE: 100 and accrued dividend

with a bonus of half a share of no-par value common stock with each share of preferred stock

Fractional shares of common stock will be adjusted on a basis of $18 a share.
Dividends on the preferred stock will accrue from April 1st, 1928.

Application will be made to list the preferred and the common stocks on the Toronto Curb or the Montreal Curb Market.

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancour
That for what it cost me to be free
I might have had an anchor."

David A. Brown, a he-man and super go-getter of the American Jewish race, recently expressed a hope that sounds simply divine and even like a good business proposition. Mr. Brown says that the recent United Jewish Campaign for foreign relief may be the last provided all the outstanding pledges are paid in full. This is a bargain and Mr. Brown and the contributors' list should be able to strike a deal, the sooner the better.

The Jews of this country are gratified that they were able to help millions in distress and happy that it was not they themselves who needed aid. They poured gold into Europe for relief and did it willingly and whole-heartedly and rejoice to learn that their money was used for worthy purposes of rehabilitation. All of them are pleased that their overseas brethren are no longer in acute distress but many of them are more than pleased that the machinery of another enormous campaign need not be heard again. This boon is cheap at almost any price.

In decades to come people examining the literature of money drives of this period will be unable to credit their eyes. They will imagine that their forbears had sound-proof ears or wore some queer ingenious contrivances to keep out the noise. They may be certain that this age was the one in which there were no adjectives left. For one of the major curses of the Great War was its effect upon the language of persuasion and the tone in which it is employed. Men to whom any part of the theatre of war would be most annoying and repugnant makes speeches and listen to speeches from which they get the vicarious satisfaction of a soldier working on his D.S.C.

In these addresses the lingo of altruism is made up of variations on the theme of the lingo of battle, combat and war. Romance is dead every where else and mass heroism is no place if not on the first line in a money campaign. Strong men pale at the suggestion that they may not go over the top unless they snap into it with more pep, get behind their committees and see that the pledge cards come back properly signed on the dotted area. They are soldiers marching on the pocketbooks and selfishness of a community and those who urge them on are hoarse at the end of the week from measuring quota against super-canvassing, tuning in, standing by, waiting for the zero hour and winding up in a verbal muddle made up of ballyhoo exhortations, radio expressions and the stimulants of high-pressure salesmanship. "Annie Laurie" and other ballads have been sung and all the technique of luncheon-club and church-supper banalities have been resorted to and it's a wise soldier who knows as he plows through the barb wire whether he belongs in the army or to the United Synagogue of America.

Only an ultra-pessimist could believe that this sort of martial appeal is the only call to which people will respond. The time must approach when the proper summons will be one of serenity generating sweetness and light without so much infernal fire and clatter. The human larynx cannot stand forever the wear and tear put upon it by the militant method of shekel-getting and even figures of speech grow meaningless and limp from constant pressure. The bugle call is too shrill and should be outmoded lest the ear of the contributors' list crack under the vibrations. People are getting fed up with such tactics but the leaders are slow to see it. By the time they get around to "viewing with alarm" the contributors' list will have lost its hearing and good causes will be obliged to suffer for lack of interest.

David Brown's expression of hope that there need not be another big "drive" makes him the bearer of glad tidings. As a promise it is a good buy in exchange for paying up pledges. If European Jewry is in need it must have help from American Jewry whenever necessary. That goes without saying. But the way of soliciting it must change. Let the tumult and the shouting die and be supplanted by something in a different key. f.f.c.

"We do lots of strange things!"

In your spring housecleaning do not overlook the fact that this laundry washes anything "washable," from circus tents to pocket handkerchiefs. Rag carpets, boat sails, dusters—in fact, a surprising lot of articles—are included in the family washes sent us during the spring season. And our customers are delighted with the results. If in doubt about the "washability" of any article phone our young lady and she will be able to tell you. We have, of course, five different kinds of "family wash" service, all done with soft water and pure soap—each separately. Phone now.

Time is on your side when you save money

It is for you to decide whether time shall work for you or against you.

Passing weeks can be wonderfully kind if you save regularly—and bitterly cruel if you do not.

Then seize as your personal opportunity the passing of time. Open an account with this, your own institution. Week by week, regularly put something by.

Ten per cent. of your income is a good plan, but save something, if its only a dollar or soeach payday.

Time makes savings grow—Time adds interest—And here, the Ontario Government guarantees the safety of all deposits. Start with a dollar if you like—but after you start, keep going.

From a letter addressed to us by Mr. D. Dunkelman, President of the Company, and from other information which we have obtained, we summarize as follows:—

BUSINESS AND MANAGEMENT: Tip Top Tailors, Limited, has been organized in 1928 under the laws of the Dominion of Canada to acquire the business, undertaking, assets and goodwill of The Berger Tailoring Company, Limited, which Company was incorporated in 1910 by Mr. D. Dunkelman to engage in the manufacture and distribution of men's clothing. This Company does the largest made-to-measure clothing business in Canada, its product being distributed through its own stores now 34 in number, as well as through agencies all over Canada. The business was started 18 years ago with a capital of $1,500, and during these years assets exceeding $2,000,000 have been built up mainly through reinvestment of surplus earnings. The Company has one of the most efficient and up-to-date plants on the continent.

The present management, which has been largely responsible for the success of the business, will remain with the Company. The growth of the business is apparent from the fact that sales were $2,520,289.40 in 1925; $3,010,962.79 in 1926, and $3,420,545.80 in 1927. A further expansion in sales is taking place in 1928, the sales for the first three months being well in excess of those for the corresponding period of 1927.

ASSETS: The fixed assets being acquired by the Company, including land, buildings and equipment, have been recently appraised by the Sterling Appraisal Company, Limited, and are carried on the Company's books, after depreciation, at $928,686.68. Net tangible assets available for the preferred shares, as certified by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., Chartered Accountants, amounted to $2,209,343.30. Current assets are certified at $1,426,599.78, as against current liabilities of $151,409.53, making a working capital ratio of over 9 to 1.

EARNINGS: The net earnings of the Company, after providing for adequate depreciation and federal income taxes at present rates, as certified to by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., for the last three years were as follows:—

For the year ended December 31st, 1927	447,001.44

The net earnings for the year ended December 31st, 1927, amounted therefore, to over four times the total annual dividend requirements on the preferred shares. The balance of the earnings available for dividends on the common stock amounted to $2.85 per share on the 120,000 shares of common stock to be now outstanding. Earnings for the current year, in the opinion of the management, should show a substantial growth over those for last year.

SAFEGUARDS: In addition to other important safeguards the charter provides that the Company shall not declare any dividend on the common stock if by so doing the net current assets would be reduced to less than $1,000,000, or the net tangible assets to less than $2,100,000.

SINKING FUND: The Company shall on the first day of April, 1929, and on the first day of April in each year thereafter, set apart as and for a sinking fund a sum equal to 10% of the net earnings as defined of the Company for the preceding fiscal year, available for payment of dividends on the common shares. Such sum shall be immediately applied by the Company in the purchase of preferred shares, if obtainable, at not exceeding $105 per share, plus brokerage charges.

CONVERSION PRIVILEGE: The holders of preferred shares have the right from time to time up to but not after May 1st, 1933, to convert the fully paid preferred shares into fully paid common shares of the Company, without nominal or par value, on the basis of two common shares for each preferred share. Such right may be exercised by notice in writing given to the Company at its head office or to the Transfer Agent of the Company in Toronto. In the event of preferred shares being called for redemption, the holders thereof may nevertheless exercise this conversion privilege up to and including the day preceding the date specified in any notice as the date of redemption of preferred shares.

Provision is made against the dilution of the conversion privilege in the event of the issue of additional common shares.

These shares are offered for sale and delivery if, as and when issued and received by us and subject to the approval of all legal proceedings by W. Kaspar Fraser, Esq., of Fraser & Beatty, Toronto.

Application will be made in due course to list the preferred and common shares on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Price: 100 and accrued dividend per share

A limited amount of common stock is available at $31 per share.
